

About Terri Willard

In 2023/24, I will be a grade 11 advisor. This is my 9th year as a SOMET advisor. I love helping young adults figure out how they can contribute to their communities and have been involved in teaching and mentoring in one capacity or another for over 20 years.

Prior to becoming a K-12 educator, I worked at the International Institute for Sustainable Development (IISD) for 14 years and was a sessional instructor for the University of Winnipeg Master's of Development Practice program. I have a bachelor's degree from Georgetown University in Foreign Service, a master's degree in forestry and land use from Oxford University, and an education degree from the University of Manitoba. I have lived and studied in the US, Costa Rica, the Philippines, England and Canada and traveled extensively around the world.
